

Alison Jackson

Road Cyclist

Current Canadian National Road Champion
Paris Roubaix Femmes Winner 2023

From: Vermilion, Alberta, Canada
Date of birth: 14th December 1988
Lives and trains: Girona, Spain
Team: EF Education-Oatly

Alison is a three-time Canadian National Road Race Champion (2021, 2023 and 2025) and known for her success in the Classics - particularly her 'dream win' at Paris-Roubaix Femmes 2023.

She grew up on a bison farm in Vermilion, Alberta, instilling in her a strong toughness and work ethic which she has transferred onto the bike. Alison found cycling slightly later than many of her peers in the peloton, beginning after university. She started to dabble in local bike races, and found a penchant for winning - later being offered a contract with a professional team in the US, before moving to Europe full-time.

Alongside her Paris-Roubaix Femmes victory, Alison has ridden in two Olympic Games and multiple World Championships. In 2024, she won a stage at the Vuelta, rode a strong Tour de France Femmes avec Zwift for her teammates, and competed for Canada in Paris. She currently rides for EF Education-Oatly and always wants the best possible result for the team. In 2025 Alison took fifth place at Paris-Roubaix and followed with a seventh place at Amstel Gold. She won her first stage race this May at Gracia Orlová, where she also took a stage win and the points classification.

It's impossible to not be drawn in by Alison's infectious fun personality. Often seen dancing on social media, laughing around with teammates or eating a burger half way up a climb - she sure knows how to enjoy herself and not take life too seriously.
