Katie Archibald is a world class British Cycling track cyclist and current World Champion.

She was born with sporting pedigree and recruited into British Cycling's Olympic Development Academy in late 2013, making her GB debut that year in the European Track Championships – breaking the World Record in the Team Pursuit!

Results came thick and fast from there. In 2014 she won the Team Pursuit world title, becoming Scotland's first female World Champion and in the following years' the results continued both individually and as a team.

Multiple European, Commonwealth and World titles, and Olympic Gold in the Team Pursuit in Rio 2016 (and also appointed MBE for services to cycling).

In 2021, Katie came home from the Tokyo Olympics with Gold in the Madison (with Laura Kenny) and Silver in the Team Pursuit, followed by multiple medals at the World Champs that year. The inaugural UCI Track Champions League was Katie's key focus to wrap up 2021, a new format of racing on the track. Katie dominated the Endurance category winning the series in style in the final round in London, and again in 2023 and 2024.

Katie is passionate about getting more people on bikes, and promoting safe cycling to all ages and communities.
